CUT LIVING COST IN 90 DAYS OR FACE BIG RAIL STRIKE

Industrial peace in the United States depends on results the Government can show in the next ninety days in its campaign to reduce the cost of living. That time limit was set tactically by the Executive Council of the Railway Shop Crafts in suggesting to union locals throughout the country that President Wilson's compromise offer in response to their demand for higher wages should be accepted, pending outcome of the effort to restore a normal price level. If the cost of living does not come down, the 500,000 members of the shop crafts would reserve the right to strike for money, and with them probably would be associated the remainder of the 2,500,000 railroad employees, all of whom have been considering the same problem.

The letter of the Executive Council served to compose somewhat the uneasiness felt in official circles over the immediate labor situation and to focus attention on legal measures being directed by Attorney General Palmer and the assistant, Judge Ames to take the inflation out of prices by punishing hoarders and profiteers.

"In our opinion," the letter said, "the next ninety days will bring the entire situation to a head, and if a strike is to take place every class of railroad employees should be willing to join in the movement, share their full measure of responsibility and not leave the issue to be decided by the 22 per cent of the railroad employees represented by the Federated Trades."

Apprehension was evident, however, both in the letter and in the conversation of the international officers, that the men might not be willing to accept the suggestion that the question of strike be left in the hands of the Executive Council and a suspension of work be ordered only after a "reasonable time" had made it clear that such a step was necessary to afford relief. The letter said the proposal was certain to draw criticisms from individuals "who have not as yet indicated a desire to listen to reason," and that it was conceivable some men would want to rush into a strike now.

Officers of the unions declined to hazard a guess whether the advice would prevail, but hoped that the more moderate element would dominate the deliberations.

Buick Sedan for Seven

THE BUICK Model K-Six-50 four-door Sedan is the latest development in closed car design. The front seat, instead of being divided, is full width, giving additional roominess to passengers and providing an extra brace to the body which adds considerably to its stability.

The latest type of cowl and side lamps, tilting steering wheel and satin finished interior trimmings are featured in this Sedan. The lining is done in rich plush, without binding. Altered lines and low-hung body give added grace to the exterior without sacrificing head-room. The main compartment accommodates two disappearing seats, which are built for genuine comfort.

Silk shades on rollers afford privacy or shut out a too ardent sun. Ventilation is controlled by the adjustable windows and windshield, the door windows being fitted with patent handles for raising or lowering them. Suitable lights give interior illumination. Lowered seats give greater riding comfort.
